

Health Official: Government Is Scrubbing COVID Vaccine Deaths

The COVID-19 vaccines are killing “huge numbers” of people and the government is hiding the data, according to Dr. Peter McCullough, a professor in medicine who is the most cited doctor on COVID treatments in the National Library of Medicine.

In a video interview, he says the United States government, Gates Foundation and all the world health agencies have made a “commitment to mass vaccination” while sitting on information showing that mass numbers of people are dying from those vaccines.

McCullough, who also has a master’s degree in public health, is an award-winning doctor whose own COVID treatments successfully helped get people well as outpatients and keep them out of the hospital. McCullough has already testified before the U.S. Senate about effective treatments he’s used.

Yet, despite the fact that these treatments are inexpensive and easily available, the world’s governments and health agencies have colluded to simply concentrate on getting everyone vaccinated, McCullough says – and it’s killing tens of thousands of people. And, as governments and health agencies purposely choose not to acknowledge it, he’s calling it an effective “scrubbing” of the truth.

A “lot of Americans don’t understand how tight these stakeholders are,” he says, and any other vaccine would have been pulled from the market long before now.
